Interment Services Levy	Mandatory Government charges relating to the interment or cremation of bodily remains collected on behalf of the NSW Government
--------------------------------	---

Interment Rights

In NSW, purchasing a burial or ash placement site means acquiring an interment right—a legal agreement with a cemetery operator. It gives you the exclusive right to use a specific location (such as a grave, crypt, vault, mausoleum, or niche) for interment but does not include land ownership.

Interment rights can be either perpetual or renewable.

- ♦ A perpetual interment right means the interment right is kept forever.
- ♦ A renewable interment right means the burial place is kept for a set period (usually 25 years) and can be renewed for a longer term or returned to the cemetery.

Right of Interment Holders

The interment right holder is the person listed in the cemetery's official register. Rights can be held by one person or shared jointly. The cemetery will issue all rights holders with a Right of Interment Certificate. Holders can:

- ♦ Approve interments in the interment right.
- ♦ Authorise memorials and their upkeep.
- ♦ Consent to any changes involving the right.
- ♦ Consent to transfers of rights.

All joint holders are required to provide written consent of changes to and authorisation of interment rights. Changes to rights holders will attract a transfer fee. You can obtain an interment right by:

- ♦ Applying through a cemetery and paying the required fee.
- ♦ Receiving a transfer of the right, which must be recorded in the cemetery register.

When purchasing an interment right, you are entitled to sufficient time to review your contract and a post-purchase cooling-off period to consider your decision. For more information visit:
